Feeding Corn Stalks.

A farmer says: "Farmers justly set a high value on well-cured cornstalks, but some find a difficulty in getting their stock to eat them as cleanly as they wish. I have overcome this difficulty this winter by sprinkling them with hot brine. I withheld dry salt from the stock for a while, also husks, and made a brine by putting salt into a watering pot and pouring on hot water, gave the husks a bountiful sprinkling, and fed them the last thing at night, instead of feeding them in the morning, as formerly. I think if I had tried this plan years ago I should have saved a great amount of fodder that was thrown out and trodden under foot."

Changing the Bearing Year.

A New Hampshire correspondent of the New England Farmer, writing in reference to the changing of the bearing year of the apple tree, says: "I believe it can be done by heavy pruning and heavy manuring in the even year, provided the tree be not allowed to bear fruit that year. Among my own recollectio s of the long-ago past, is one of a man, who was a pioneer in fruit raising, standing by his overloaded trees and whipping off the fruit. He asserted that in this way he was able to secure a fair crop of apples the next year. He always had fruit every year, I remember. A few years ago, it so happened that I manured two apple trees rather heavily, in the even year; the next year they bore a heavy crop and have continued to do so every year since. Another tree, that stood near the wall, was manured only on one side, and that side at once took to bearing on the odd year, while the other side continued its old-established habit. of even year bearing. These trees all produce fall fruit. It may not be so easy to change the babit of a Baldwin or other tree that matures its fruit later, but I have no doubt it could be done in a few years by this means."

THE HOME DOCTOR.

How to Cure a Cold. While it is easy to take cold in midsummer, colds are usually more prevalent when low temperature prevails, though less in clear, steady winter than during the variable spring and autumn. "Catching cold" is usually the result of inequality of temperature in two parts of the body, especially adjacent parts, which disturbs the uniform circulation of the blood. At the place where this disturbance occurs, "congestion" arises, that is, a rush of blood to a part from one direction faster than it is carried off by the chilled blood vessels in the other direction, and this produces serious results if not speedily remedied. This diseased condition may extend over the whole body, affecting most severely any organ already weak. Thus a cold may come from damp or chilled feet; from even a slight draft of air blowing through a crack, upon one side or portion of the body and cooling it; from standing near a fire or stove, and heating one side while the other remains comparatively cold; from warmer clothing in one part of the body than on another; from lightly dressing the arms and lower limbs, or leaving them naked; from standing over a hot register; from the chilling evaporation of water or moisture, from a portion only of one's clothing-in general from any cause producing inequality of tempera-

The causes of a cold, named, indicate how to avoid one. Maintaining general vigor by nourishing, well-digested food, gives one power to resist an attack. When to be especially exposed, a little tonic, as a grain or two of quinine, taken in advance, may be useful. Stimulants, like alcoholic liquors, are but a temporary aid; the reaction after the first stimulating effects, leaves one more subject to take cold than if the stimulant had been omitted.

Simple remedies will usually remove a cold, if taken promptly, before the congestion has produced serious disorganization. When struck with a sense of chilliness, 15 to 30 drops of aromatic spirits of ammonia, in half a tumbler of water, will often start a uniform circulation all through the body, as this quickly enters the whole blood and is stimulating. Soaking the feet in warm water, gradually adding warmer water as long as it can be borne, draws off the blood from all the rest of the body, and often relieves congestion in any local part. Smart friction upon any part or the whole of the skin surface, or a uniform sweating, produces like results. But in these cases, special care must be taken to prevent after-chilling of the feet, or any other part. After the feet heating, wipe dry quickly and cover them warmly, The best remedy we have found for 6,377,330 population.

trouble nim long, as he had foundout a remedy for all such annoying affections. I asked what the remedy was and he replied, "Sr. JACOBS OIL." Mr. Pastorsaid that he considered the Great German Remedy an excellent preparation for the cure or relief of rheumatism, and that it was the only thing used among professional people for that distressing complaint. He took bottles of it with him whenever he went traveting, and would not be without it, and knew that it was very popular with a number of members of his own company. The foregoing, from the Brooklyn (N. Y.) Engle, recalls to our mind an item wherein the editor of the Cairo (Ill.) Evening Sun, in paying a tribute to the enterprise of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, and expressing his sorrow at the loss by fire which the latter paper sustained, says: "The whole office was knocked into ten thousand pieces—all except the Sr. JACOBS OIL advertisement, which was mercifully preserved." The closing remarks in the above and the following incident are a true index of the unexampled popularity the Great German Remedy enjoys everywhere: At a St. Louis theatre recently whilst the play was in progress, one of the lady performers met with a painful mishap, which cuite disabled her. The hero of the piece, equal to the emergency, called out to one of the ushers to "bring a bottle of Sr. JACOBS OIL quickly." The thundering applanse throughout the enhire house which promptly followed this happy suggestion was an unmistakable proof of the fact that the audience "had been there themselves," as the expression goes, and experienced the benefits of this wonderful article.

Mr. Charles A. Whitney, advertising agent of Park Garden, Providence, R. I., writes: "For three years I had inflammatory rheumatism in my right hip and knee. I employed many noted physicians, and tried numerous remedies for the ailment, but found nothing to help me until I used the Great German Remedy, Sr. JACOBS OIL, which cured meastonce. I am now entirely well." $2,000 REWARD!
